

WHAT IS THE NURSING CRISIS?

UNDERSTANDING IT FROM ALL ANGLES

Joanne Kenen

Sheila Antrum

Gretchen Berlin

Bianca Frogner

Robin Geiger

Matt McHugh

Nursing faces critical issues, resulting in the current nursing crisis. How do we understand the nuances impacting the profession, build mutual understanding, and find solutions? The panelists represent varied perspectives across the nursing workforce. They will address the reasons for the shortage, its impact on care, strategies for addressing it, and the role of policy in solutions.

April 19 | 3:00 - 4:00 PM EST

Register and Zoom Link : Bit.ly/SONALLANGLES

Moderator:

Joanne Kenan, Commonwealth Fund Journalist-in-Residence
Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health

Panelists:

Sheila Antrum, Chief Operating Officer, Senior Vice President, UCSF Health

Gretchen Berlin, Senior Partner, McKinsey

Bianca Frogner, Director of the UW Center for Health Workforce Studies, University of Washington

Robin Geiger, Senior Vice President, Clinician Advocacy, Ingenovis

Matt McHugh, Director of the Center for Health Outcomes and Policy Research, Penn Nursing

Presented by the Johns Hopkins School of Nursing and the Hopkins Business of Health Initiative