

SPRING 2024

EAST ASIAN STUDIES SPEAKER SERIES

Beyond Birth Rates: South Korea's Policy Response to Demographic Aging

Examining how demographic shifts shape policy priorities and challenges, I explore the multifaceted implications of population aging, low birth rates, and shrinking workforce on South Korea's domestic politics and international engagements. By analyzing the evolving discourse and policy responses to demographic decline, I analyze South Korea's efforts to address this pressing issue within the context of its broader socio-political landscape and regional relations.

Darcie Draudt- Véjares

Asia Program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

TUESDAY

APRIL 23

12 : 00 - 1 : 30 PM

MERGENTHALER 266

co-sponsored by the EAS, Department of Political Science & International Studies