

Johns Hopkins undergrads,
mark your calendars!

Computational Medicine Minor Q&A

Tuesday, November 2, 2021
6:30 - 8:00 pm

The Undergraduate Minor in Computational Medicine is the first educational program of its kind, reflecting Johns Hopkins University's preeminence in multidisciplinary research.

Students in this program will gain skills that are essential to the advancement of modern medicine and are prized both in academia and industry.

Dr. Joel Bader, Interim Director of the Institute for Computational Medicine, will provide an overview of the program and take your questions!
