The Hologic Global Women's Health Index

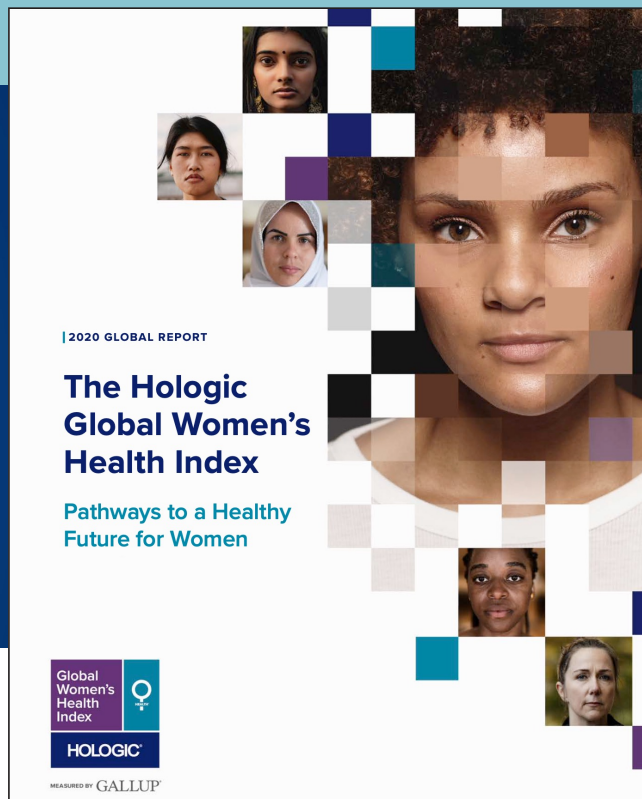

is a multiyear, comprehensive global survey about women's health. We interviewed more than 120,000 women and men in 116 countries and territories in more than 140 languages.

The results are shared in this report and distributed to global leaders and policymakers around the world. Our goal is to call to action world leaders to improve women's health, to change lives, support greater development and address longstanding inequalities.

Join us to hear five exciting projects in global innovation projects.
