

Inventing Latinos: Systemic Racism and the Origins of the Anti-Latino Racial Logic

Speaker: Laura E. Gómez, author of Inventing Latinos

Tuesday, Sept. 28 | 12 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Join the Johns Hopkins Medicine Office of Diversity, Inclusion & Health Equity in celebrating National Hispanic Heritage Month with Laura E. Gómez, author of Inventing Latinos: A New Story of American Racism. Gómez will dive into how the common sense of anti-Latino racism became cognizable as part of the American racial cosmology, explain why Latinos as a distinctive racial category came to be over the past five decades — putting this moment in historical context — and place anti-Latino racism into the broader context of anti-African American racism and white supremacy in America.

Register here or by scanning the QR code.

For more information, please contact the Office of Diversity, Inclusion and Health Equity at diversity@jhmi.edu.

